COURSE INFORMATION

Why Modern Studies?

Modern Studies examines the society we live in. You will learn about democracy, social issues, international issues and how people view the government. You will develop skills such as communication, creative thinking, critical evaluation of the media and use of information technology.

Course Outline.

Modern Studies helps to develop your understanding of how modern society is organised. You will study different organisations and evaluate how effective they are in meeting their aims. You will learn how human and legal rights and responsibilities are represented in society. You will develop a range of research and information handling skills.

The course has three compulsory units including an added value unit that assesses your practical skills. The units are the same as those for National 4, but you will produce a higher standard of work.

Modern Studies: Politics in Scotland

In this unit you will:

- use sources of information to detect and explain examples of exaggeration and selectivity in the use of facts
- increase your knowledge and understanding of democracy in Scotland, our place within UK politics and debates around this arrangement

ment

- learn about the ways people are able to participate in and influence the political system
- about your rights and responsibilities in a democratic political society.

Modern Studies: Crime and the Law

In this unit you will:

- learn how to use sources of information to make decisions and justify them in detail
- increase your knowledge and understanding of crime and the law

- you will examine the causes of crime; how crime affects individuals and society; and the role of individuals, the police, the court system and punishments given by the courts

Modern Studies: Aid and Development in Africa

In this unit you will:

- learn how to use sources of information to draw and give detailed support for conclusions
- further develop your knowledge and understanding of Aid in Africa

- causes and consequences of international issues, and attempts at resolution.
- differences between developed/developing nations and how/why developed nations give aid
- the role of international organisations in improving conditions in developing nations

Added Value Unit: Modern Studies Assignment—20% overall grade

In this unit you will:

- choose an issue to research using a range of skills
- write up the assignment using a structured template under exam conditions within 1 hour
- a variety of research methods will be chosen and used by the pupils to learn more about their chosen issue such as surveys, interviews, observations,

ASSESSMENT

Your work will be assessed by your teacher on an on-going basis throughout the course. Items of work might include:

- written work - research assignments, reports and case studies
- projects
- class-based exams and unit assessments
- You will also sit a written exam marked by the Scottish Qualification Authority (SQA) (80% overall grade)

You must pass the overall written exam (the Added Value Unit and the exam paper, in May) to be awarded the course qualification. The exam will consist of a mixture of knowledge and skill based questions.

The course assessment is graded A-D. Your grade will depend on the total mark for all the units in your course.
