

Why Modern Studies?

Modern Studies examines the society we live in. You will learn about democracy, social issues, international issues and how people view the government. You will develop skills such as communication, creative thinking, critical evaluation of the media and use of information technology.

Course outline

Modern Studies helps to develop your understanding of how modern society is organised. You will study different organisations and evaluate how effective they are in meeting their aims. You will learn how human and legal rights and responsibilities are represented in society. You will develop a range of research and information handling skills.

MODERN STUDIES NATIONAL 4

Details of Course Components

The course has three compulsory units plus an added value unit that assesses your practical skills. The units are the same as those for National 5, but you will produce a different standard of work.

Modern Studies: Democracy in Scotland

In this unit you will:

- use sources of information to detect and explain examples of exaggeration and selectivity in the use of facts
- increase your knowledge and understanding of democracy in Scotland, our place within UK politics and debates around this arrangement
- learn about the ways people are able to participate in and influence the political system
- learn about your rights and responsibilities in a democratic political society.

Modern Studies: Crime and the Law

In this unit you will:

- learn how to use sources of information to make decisions and justify them in detail
- increase your knowledge and understanding of crime and the law
- examine the causes of crime, how crime affects individuals and society, and the role of individuals, the police, the court system and punishments given by the courts.

Modern Studies: Aid and Development in Africa

In this unit you will:

- learn how to use sources of information to draw and give detailed support for conclusions
- further develop your knowledge and understanding of Aid in Africa
- learn about the causes and consequences of international issues, and attempts at resolution.
- increase your knowledge and understanding of differences between developed/developing nations and how/why developed nations give aid
- learn about the role of international organisations in improving conditions in developing nations.

Modern Studies: Added Value Unit & Assignment

In this unit you will:

- choose an issue to research using a range of skills
- choose and use a variety of research methods to learn more about your chosen issue such as surveys, interviews, observations, reading, the media and the internet.

Details of Course Assessments

Your work will be assessed by your teacher on an on-going basis throughout the course. Items of work might include:

- written work, research assignments, reports and case studies
- projects
- class-based exams and unit assessments.

You must pass all the units including the Added Value Unit to gain the course qualification.
